THE SPRING BAY MILL SUNFLOWER CELEBRATION

Saturday 29th January

I was fortunate to attend this lovely event, held in Paddy's Paddock, an open area with Bay views, and part of the Spring Bay Mill.

The day began with a welcome to country ceremony from 3 members of NITA Education, to recognise and respect Palawa peoples, (Trish Hodges, Jarrod Cripps, Amber Devine). Trish also later in the day held a Bush Food walk

The program for the day proceeded to offer some excellent information and entertainment, workshops and demonstrations from garden layout, composting and worm farms to native flower arranging.

Marcus Ragus and a team of diligent volunteers had been working all year in prep paration for the day resulting in a beautiful free flowing garden of vegetables, herbs and of course sunflowers. The track meandered around a variety of rambling beds of plant species, surrounded by butterflies and crocking frogs, as presenters from the Gardening Australia Show, Tino Carnevale and Angus Stewart, along with Marcus, shared their knowledge and tips.

Several musicians and groups kept the music flowing through the day for all to enjoy and the children were kept busy creating and painting in the Craft tent. Roving life size puppets from the Terrapin Theatre greeted and amused the crowds.

Hot food, coffee, ice-cream vans supplied refreshments, and it was only a short walk up the hill to SBMill itself for a wine and an Industrial History walk. A shuttle bus was available to the Mill and back all day for the visitors' convenience.

Other stalls included sales of sunflowers, vegetables, essential botanical oils, and NPWS Discovery information on snakes and animals (some you may find in your garden occasionally), also some cooking/food fermenting demonstrations (kimchi).

ARTICLES of INTEREST

AGE PENSIONERS WORKING PAST RETIREMENT AGE.

The Australian Taxation Rates are:
Income: less than $18,000: Nil
Between $18,001 and $45,000: $0.19 cents on the amount above $18,000
Between $45,001 and $120,000: $0.325 on the amount above $45,000
Between $120,001 and $180,000: $0.37 on the amount above $120,000
Income Greater than $180,000: $0.45 on the amount above $180,000

In this regard, two organisations have Seniors Australia and The Australian Chamber of Commerce and Industry approached the Federal Government to investigate the unfair penalty imposed on a pensioner earning more than $480 per fortnight, or $7,800 per year and pays an effective tax rate of $0.50 per on all income over the fortnightly allowance. In other words if you earn more than $480 p/fn, as a pensioner you pay $0.50 per $, however if you earn more than $180,000 or approx $6,900 p/fn you only pay $0.45 in the $ on the excess over $180,000 p/a.

Their approach was in relation to allow pensioners to work a few extra hours per shift without a penalty. Their basis was in relation to the pandemic and the lack of casual and part time employees due to the restrictions on entry to Australia of backpackers & students.

They believe that with the population growth of aged pensioners there maybe some who would appreciate being able to participate in the workforce without the stringent penalties of doing so.

Below is a transcript of an article from YourLifeChoice online magazine in which Brad Lockyer interviewed Mr Ian Henschke of Seniors Australia. I also attach a link to a radio interview between ABC RN Breakfast Program Wednesday 8th December 2021 Presented by Cathy Van Extel who interviewed Andrew McKellar, Chief Executive of the Australian Chamber of Commerce and Industry. In relation to this matter. The full interview can be accessed here. <https://www.abc.net.au/radionational/programs/breakfast/plan-to-protect-pension-to-return-older-australians-to-work/13667336>

The below article was by Brad Lockyer and printed in the digital magazine "Your Life Choices" 11th January 2022 and has been reproduced with permission by YourLifeChoice magazine

"Community and business leaders are calling for an overhaul of the Age Pension system to allow older Australians to return to work."

Older Australians eager to go back to work shouldn't be prevented from doing so by a punitive Age Pension system, a leading seniors' advocate argues. National Seniors chief advocate Ian Henschke is urging both major political parties to take a policy to the upcoming federal election to make employment income exempt from the Age Pension income test for pensioners with limited savings.

"If the government exempted work income from the income test for those with limited savings it would boost their income and savings in retirement, and boost the productivity of the nation," Mr Henschke told The Australian.

Under the current system, pensioners are able to earn up to $300 per fortnight without penalty under the Work Bonus scheme, plus a further $180 under the income test, for a total of $480 per fortnight. Anything earned above the extra $180 reduces pension payments by 50 cents for every dollar earned.

"If you earn more than $240 a week, you lose 50 cents in the dollar," Mr Henschke says.

"That means a single pensioner can only earn $7800 a year before they start losing their pension."

This effective 50 per cent tax rate makes it financially unreasonable for many pensioners to return to work.

"There are almost four million retirees, of which 2.6 million receive the pension," Mr Henschke says. "If just 5 per cent more chose to work, that would be an army of 130,000 additional workers."

A report from the Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) found Australia ranks 18th out of 37 developed nations for workforce participation for over-65s with just 14.2 per cent in work.

Compare this with the more than 34.34 per cent of over-65s still working in South Korea, 25.48 per cent in Japan and 24.8 per cent in New Zealand.

Mr Henschke says Australia could learn a lot from our cousins across the ditch, where they do not lose any pension for receiving income from employment. "In New Zealand, workforce participation among pensioners is a whopping 25 per cent. Here it is less than 3 per cent," he says. "Part of the reason for this disparity is that Kiwis don't lose their pension when they work, they simply pay tax." Business groups have welcomed the push to get more older Australians back into work, saying it could help address labour shortages currently being faced across the country.

Andrew McKellar, chief executive of the Australian Chamber of Commerce and Industry, says "there is an army of older workers, ready and willing to return to the workplace. However, skilled aged pension recipients have very little incentive to re-enter the workplace."

The pandemic has hurt the economy, leaving thousands of local employees in isolation. Border closures have meant the usually steady flow of international workers has been cut off, and there has been talk of a 'great resignation'.

"In raising the Work Bonus threshold, pensioners would be allowed the opportunity to earn more, while businesses who are struggling to find staff would have access to workers, filling thousands of job vacancies," Mr McKellar says.

Would you go back to work if the pension penalties were removed? Should the government reform the pension system?"

Tasmanian Government schools have COVID-19 safety measures in place and are ready to welcome students back.

Safety measures include:

- frequent cleaning and increased hygiene practices
- vaccination of all Department of Education staff, volunteers and contractors
- wearing of face masks indoors by all staff and secondary school students (masks will be provided to students as needed)
- increased ventilation in classrooms
- use of outdoor learning areas.

It's recommended that children 5 years and older get vaccinated, but it is not needed to come back to school. Book in today at any of the dedicated children's clinics operating statewide.

WHAT'S SO FUNNY?

I wonder what my parents did to fight boredom before the internet. I asked my 17 brothers and sisters and they didn't know either.

A man tells his wife, "Honey, your mom fell down the stairs 15 minutes ago." The wife yells at him, "Why are you just telling me now?" He said, "Because I couldn't stop laughing."

A husband and wife have four boys. The odd part of it is that the older three have red hair, light skin, and are tall, while the youngest son has black hair, dark eyes, and is short. The father eventually takes ill and is lying on his deathbed when he turns to his wife and says, "Honey, before I die, be completely honest with me. Is our youngest son my child?" The wife replies, "I swear on everything that's holy that he is your son." With that, the husband passes away. The wife then mutters, "Thank God he didn't ask about the other three."

The Bishop, elderly, yet still a formidable player, regularly trounced the Rural Dean.
"Never mind." The Bishop consoled him, "you have many years in which to improve. And my future is limited – you'll bury me one day."
"Yes Bishop..... but it will still be your hole."
