PARTIES AND CANDIDATES URGED TO PUT LOCAL COMMUNITIES FIRST

The peak body representing Tasmanian councils is urging candidates and parties in the Federal Election to put local communities first.

Local Government Association of Tasmania (LGAT) President, West Tamar Mayor and Vice President of the Australian Local Government Association (ALGA) Christina Holmdahl said LGAT is asking all Tasmanians to vote for local this Federal Election.

“As you head to the ballot box, I urge you to vote for the party that backs local communities and commits to funding programs that create and support local jobs and infrastructure,” Mayor Holmdahl said. On behalf of the state’s 29 councils, LGAT is asking the next Federal Government to work with the sector to support local communities.

“All levels of government must work together to address the cost of living and housing affordability crisis,” she said. Mayor Holmdahl said Tasmanian councils are also seeking other commitments, like ensuring local perspectives are involved in national decision making.

“Councils play a crucial role in a number of policy areas like housing, environmental management and transport, and as the closest level of government to the community, it’s vital we represent our communities at National Cabinet,” she said.

Without local government’s voice at the table, Tasmanian communities risk being left behind.

“Working together, we can better protect our communities from fires and floods and create thousands of new jobs right across Tasmania,” she said.

“We can build safer roads and provide more affordable social housing and reduce indigenous disadvantage.

“We can drive down the cost of living pressures for families and help to deliver a better future for all Australians,” Mayor Holmdahl said.

“This Federal Election, we are supporting ALGA’s campaign that calls on all parties to not leave local communities behind.”

Further information on ALGA’s local government website.

$250M WIN FOR AUSTRALIAN COMMUNITIES

Labor’s proposed $250 million expansion of the Local Roads and Community Infrastructure (LRCI) program would benefit every Australian community through better local sporting facilities, new and upgraded libraries and playgrounds, and safer roads.

ALGA President Linda Scott said local governments had strongly advocated to both major parties for more LRCI funding in the lead-up to this year’s federal election.

“We welcomed the Government’s $500 million expansion of this program in the 2022-23 Federal Budget, and local governments are thrilled that Labor has today committed to a further $250 million if elected,” Cr Scott said.

“Councils are now calling on the Prime Minister and Coalition to match this commitment and extend the total size of this highly successful funding program to $3.25 billion.”

“Since the Local Roads and Community Infrastructure program was launched two years ago, local governments have partnered with the Commonwealth to deliver thousands of new projects right across our country.”

“We have built and upgraded community centres, libraries, skate parks, bike paths, walking trails, swimming pools, playgrounds, and local sporting facilities.”

“Working with the Commonwealth, we have improved the liveability of our communities, reduced cost-of-living pressures for local families, and created thousands of new jobs.”

“Importantly, this federal program provides funding to all councils, so all communities benefit.”

“The Local Roads and Community Infrastructure program has been a huge success, and we look forward to working with whoever forms the next federal government to roll out even more local community infrastructure across our nation.”

Take the Bloody Oath

Jen Butler MP Labor Member for Lyons is a regular blood donor and is keen to assist Australia Red Cross in asking Tasmanians to roll up their sleeves and donate. Your blood is precious, and your donations are truly life-saving,” Ms Butler said.

There is a nation-wide shortage of donated blood, and Tasmanian health services and the Australian Red Cross are calling out for more Tasmanians to help aide the drive. A series of disasters across Australia have meant that blood is more precious than ever. COVID-19 has affected supply chain and staffing, as well regular donators planned visits to the Red Cross.

The floods in New South Wales and Queensland have also impacted the blood supply. With the Easter Long Weekend in April, supply will be stretched further.

The biggest influence is going to be on people with A or O blood types, as they make up the majority of people in hospital who require donated blood. You can donate at locations around Tasmania. These locations are Hobart, Launceston, Burnie and Devonport.

“The staff are fantastic, friendly and very comforting,” Ms Butler went on to say.

“They are more than happy to answer any questions and inquiries. So, I encourage anyone, if you have a spare hour or two, please go forward and donate to the Red Cross.”

“One in three people will need donated blood in their lifetime. The person you are saving could be a friend, family member or loved one.”

Logging onto www.lifeblood.com.au is a simple process and easy to sign up for. Or, you can call The Australian Red Cross on 6235 6077 and they can help to direct you from there.

SWANSEA BOWLS CLUB HAS ANNUAL CARNIVAL

Swansea Bowls Club Inc hosted its annual carnival this year on the 22nd, 23rd and 24th of April.

It was an outstanding success hosting 88 bowlers Friday, 112 Saturday, and 112 Sunday. The weather was beautiful, assisting to the success of the weekend.

Our congratulations go to all the winners.

Our heartfelt thanks goes out to all our local sponsors. To our club volunteers, Barry Hill our tireless Match Manager who orchestrated all the teams to be where they should be when they should be, to Vicki Whatley our kitchen manager who with the help of club volunteers kept everyone well provided with food and to Lance Elliott & Bill Hodgetts who did the mammoth job of keeping the bar stocked and the beer cold, and lastly to Brian Wesley who provided a green second to none for us all to play on.

To all our other volunteers on the day and throughout the year you make a club what it is.

New rules for close contacts

If you have been in close contact with someone who has tested positive for COVID-19, you are no longer required to quarantine. However, for 7 days from being told you are a close contact, you must:

- Take a test as soon as you find out you are a close contact, again on day 6 and on each day that you leave your home.
- Notify your workplace.
- Wear a mask indoors (not required in your own home).
- Do not enter high-risk settings such as hospitals and aged care facilities, unless you require urgent care, or are a critical worker with an exemption.
- If you develop COVID-19 symptoms, you must stay at home. If you test positive you must still isolate for at least 7 days.
